EDITOR'S LETTER

By MJ DAY

Let's start with the obvious: The Swimsuit Issue always has been, and always will be, all about sexiness. Hotness. Beauty. And while that theme ties this, the 55th installment of the franchise, to all the others before it, it's important to remember that SI Swimsuit is always evolving, too. Always growing. Always searching for new ways to explore the power and the potential behind the beauty.

In recent years we've worked hard to make the Swimsuit Issue a celebration of another idea long obvious to those of us in the real world, even if Hollywood, the fashion industry and mainstream and social media are sometimes slow to embrace it: the inarguable truth that beauty comes in all forms. Dark, light, curvy, slim, tall, short—all types of beauty are worthy of celebration. And they're all on display, beginning on the cover, with Danielle Herrington. I'm proud that the Swimsuit Issue, born decades ago as the ultimate vehicle of escapism, now also reflects the rich beauty of diversity.

Now that the definition of what's beautiful has been expanded, the next step: making SI Swimsuit an essential vehicle of empowerment as well.

A key theme this year is Swimsuit's power as a platform for the voices and messages of the bold, diverse, inspiring—and, yes, stunning—women we feature. When we started planning this issue nearly a year ago, I couldn't stop thinking about the message on a T-shirt Nina Agdal wore in one of our most popular images from Swimsuit 2017: A WOMAN DOES NOT HAVE TO BE MODEST IN ORDER TO BE RESPECTED. There is beauty in not holding back. In confidence. In perseverance. In strength of will as well as strength of body.

That ideal drove every decision we made and every photo we shot over the last six months—and it comes to life most vibrantly with the In Her Own Words project (page 122). We asked a diverse group of 10 women to make themselves the canvas and pose covered only by bodypainted words of their choosing. The black-and-white images are raw, soul-baring and, since each shoot was directed by the model herself, starkly authentic. The project is a first for SI: It was conceived and produced entirely by women, with several working both in front of and behind the camera. Photographer Taylor Ballantyne captured the images. Sailor Brinkley Cook—daughter of Christie Brinkley, a member of this year's Swim Rookie class and a Parsons School of Design photography student—posed and took behind-the-scenes pictures. Another model, Robyn Lawley, who made her Swimsuit debut in 2015, served as videographer for a documentary that can be seen on SI TV on Amazon channels.

One of the most powerful and poignant In Her Own Words participants is Aly Raisman. She is a three-time Olympic gymnastics gold medalist—but she chose SURVIVOR as her defining term, reflecting her role as a victim in her sport's horrific abuse scandal and a strong voice for change and against those who enable some of society's most abhorrent criminals. Aly also appears in our Athletes section, which features women who impress and inspire in myriad ways. Women like Brenna Huckaby, a snowboarding world champion and a gold medal favorite at the PyeongChang Paralympics—and also a cancer survivor and mother. Or like Paige Spiranac, a world-class golfer who is also a passionate crusader for female expression and against cyberbullying.

I love that female athletes have become hugely popular staples of the Swimsuit Issue. I love that more and more, female photographers are shaping our creative vision; for the second year in a row we're thrilled to feature the work of Josie Clough, who was behind the camera for our shoot in Nevis (page 148). I also love that almost every photograph in the rich history of Swimsuit has had two stars: a model and a locale that in its natural glory is just as striking as the subject.

Over the decades the Caribbean has been the Swimsuit Issue's most frequent destination, the backdrop for more than 40 photo shoots and 20 cover images, including this one. In fact every on-location shoot for Swimsuit 2018 took place in the Caribbean, our way of honoring a region that last fall saw its pristine beaches and proud people devastated by storms. The Caribbean is still in dire need, its recovery still in the early stages, and SI will continue to support hurricane relief efforts in the region. We have already committed to visit Puerto Rico for our 2019 issue, after storm damage canceled a planned photo shoot there in November.

There's another message that I can't get out of my head: OWN IT, a phrase that became kind of our internal motto for the In Her Own Words project. That's what SI Swimsuit is all about: empowerment and respect for self—but also respect for others, respect for beauty in all its forms. Respect for the intellect, courage and aspirations of our models and of women everywhere. For many reasons, it's a message that has never been more essential than it is now. So let's own it.

1 Photographer Ballantyne also helped conceive the project.
2 Sailor indulged her passion by taking behind-the-scenes shots.
3 Robyn shot video footage for SI TV's In Her Own Words special.
4 Anne de Paula gave Clough plenty to work with in Nevis.
5 The talented Clough also handled our Body Paint shoot last year.

TUNE IN

There's no denying that the television program that documents the In Her Own Words project (page 122) has an authentic point of view. After all, nearly all of the footage was shot by a model, Robyn Lawley. The end result is an insightful program that enhances an already powerful undertaking. It's one of three longform Swimsuit video offerings this year. #SISwimSearch is a three-part series focusing on our first-ever open casting call, with a spot in the 2019 rookie class on the line. (The six finalists appear on page 136.) And Making of SI Swimsuit 2018 goes behind the scenes with the models and crew as they shoot at the most gorgeous locales in the Caribbean. All of this—and more—can be found on SI TV on Amazon Channels. (You can get a free seven-day trial at SI.com/TV.)

1 There's plenty of room for you on the pink sand beaches of Harbour Island: They are up to 100 feet wide. 2 Pink Sands Resort features British West Indies architecture. 3 Junkanoo is the island's most festive time. 4 The stone crab stack at The Landing features crisp wontons and sweet soy sauce. 5 Dake's is the place to outfit yourself—or your pad.

TRAVEL

BAHAMAS

Pastels are prominent on Harbour Island, a tiny slice of land in the Bahamas. Soft shades are everywhere: on cottages, on clothing—even on the beaches, where the sand is a stunning shade of pink. (For this you can thank foraminifera, single-celled organisms with pinkish shells.) It makes the setting even more amazing—not that it needs help.

OLD MEETS NEW

Pink Sands Resort, featuring 25 cottages scattered over 20 acres, weds colonial sensibilities with modern amenities, making it the perfect place to stay. (855-855-9621, rooms from $540)
pinksandsresort.com

START THE DAY

You won't find a better place for dinner than The Landing, where the food is decadent and fresh and the award-winning wine list is extensive. But the most addictive thing served might be on the breakfast menu: ricotta hotcakes. Served with honeycomb butter, they are a fluffy delight.
harbourislandlanding.com

PONY UP

Walking along the pink beaches is nice, but why should you do all the work? You're on vacation, remember? No, the best way to take them in is a ride on horseback; you can rustle up a mount on the beach just south of Pink Sands Resort.

SHOPPE 'TIL YOU DROPPE

Want to look like an authentic islander? Load up at Dake's Shoppe, an upscale boutique in a restored historic home selling chic clothes, scarves and jewelry. And if you worry about missing the Bahamas when you're back home, Dake's also carries island-inspired original watercolors.
dakesshoppe.com

FESTIVE TIME

As if you need another reason to visit in the winter: Boxing Day and New Year's Day mean it's time for Junkanoo, an early-morning street parade with music, dance and costumes. (There's also a summer Junkanoo.) No one knows for sure how it got started, but this much is certain: It's fun.

1 You'll be forgiven for thinking you're playing golf in the desert. 2 In addition to its pool, Tierra del Sol has a host of world-class amenities, including a spa and tennis courts. 3 The California Lighthouse underwent a renovation in 2016, its 100th birthday. 4 The truffle morel bacon pasta at Tierra del Sol is exquisite. 5 Pinchos is the place to be seen at sunset.

TRAVEL

ARUBA

The sun shines almost constantly in Aruba, where it seems as if every day it's comfortably in the 80s. So you're going to catch some rays. And if you get a few too many, don't fret—the island is home to the world's best aloe, which can be found all over the island. That could come in handy if you spend a little too much time on the links. . . .

FORE!

Of course, there's only one 18-hole golf course on the island. But it's a beauty. Designed by Robert Trent Jones II, Tierra del Sol features dunes, cacti, stones and beach. It's like a golfing tour; you'll feel like you're playing in Scotland, Arizona and the Caribbean—all in the same round. tierradelsol.com

19TH HOLE

Wiped out after your round? You won't have to wait long to put your feet up, because Tierra del Sol also is home to 32 condos, villas and houses. (866-978-5158, rooms from $290) The resort's restaurant has some of the island's best fine dining, with seafood, pasta and steaks. If it all sounds too good, Thursday nights feature an "All U Can Taste" menu that allows you to sample a little bit of everything, tapas-style.

SHOWING THE WAY

If you're looking for a unique way to take in the scenery, check out the California Lighthouse near the northwestern tip of the island. (You can see the golf course from there, which could come in handy if you really want to find that lost ball.) The lighthouse is named after the S.S. California, which sank nearby in 1891; construction began in 1914, and two years later the 98-foot-high landmark was finished. arubalighthouse.com

ON THE WATER

If eating near the water isn't quite good enough for you, you're in luck. Pinchos Grill & Bar not only combines chic and casual, but it's situated over the water. If it looks like it's the kind of hip, romantic spot you'd see on The Bachelor, that's because this hip, romantic spot was featured on The Bachelor. pinchosaruba.com

1 Located along the buzzing Palm Beach strip, the sprawling Hilton Aruba was designed by hotel royalty. 2 Visiting Quadirikiri Cave is an illuminating experience. 3 A sweet red liqueur helps give the Aruba Ariba its unique flavor. 4 The Ahi tuna crudo proves that the Sunset Grille is about more than just meat. 5 Every room at the Hilton features private outdoor space.

TRAVEL

ARUBA

A nation of only 69 square miles and barely 110,000 residents, Aruba nonetheless has a little bit of everything. People of more than 90 nationalities live on the island. Pristine turquoise waters abut desertlike terrain in this land of contradictions that pleases everyone from adrenaline seekers to beach bums. If you go to Aruba, you'll want to return; it's the most revisited destination in the Caribbean.

FEATHERED FRIENDS

The island's first luxury resort certainly set a high bar. Originally designed by Morris Lapidus—the architect of the famed Fontainebleau Miami Beach—the Hilton Aruba Caribbean Resort & Casino is located on 15 acres of beach and tropical gardens. Each of the 357 rooms has a private patio or balcony, and, in addition to two pools there is a freshwater lagoon. Your fellow residents include 11 exotic birds, among them Rita, a blue and gold macaw who has her own Instagram feed, @arubarita. (+297-586-6555, rooms from $229)

BOTTOMS-UP

Hilton Aruba is very kid-friendly—they have s'mores nights—but the hotel secured a place in the pantheon of adult beverages. The Aruba Ariba was invented there back in 1963. The key ingredient is coecoei, a liqueur made from the sap of an agave plant. Get your fill while you can, though: You can only buy coecoei in Aruba.

GRILLE OUT

Chef Matt Boland's Sunset Grille, located at the Hilton, is technically a steakhouse, but the seafood and pasta—especially the short rib gnocchi—ensure that no matter your tastes, you'll leave happy (and full).

BRIGHT SPOT

Fans of the outdoors will love the rugged terrain of Arikok National Park, which covers 18% of the island. Fans of the indoors will love exploring its caves, especially Quadirikiri. Don't worry about a flashlight. The roof opening lets the sunshine pour in.

Giving models a voice has always been one of the guiding principles of SI Swimsuit. This year we took that idea farther than ever. We asked 10 women, from issues past and present, to pose wearing nothing but the words they would use to describe themselves—a literal baring of the soul.

They were a diverse group—in terms of age, body type, ethnicity. Working with an all-female crew, they would be the canvas, they would choose their words, they would decide the direction their shoot would take. "As a model, you are not expected (or really even allowed) to voice your opinion on what happens during a job," Myla Dalbesio wrote in an essay for the project. "No one wants to know what you think. But . . . I am not a mannequin. I am a person." (Read more from Myla and other essays at si.com/inherownwords*)*

The shoots were done in a stark studio in Brooklyn, with minimal hair and makeup. The focus was on letting the truest, rawest versions of these women shine through. "Don't let the simplicity of the project fool you," wrote Myla. "This is powerful stuff."

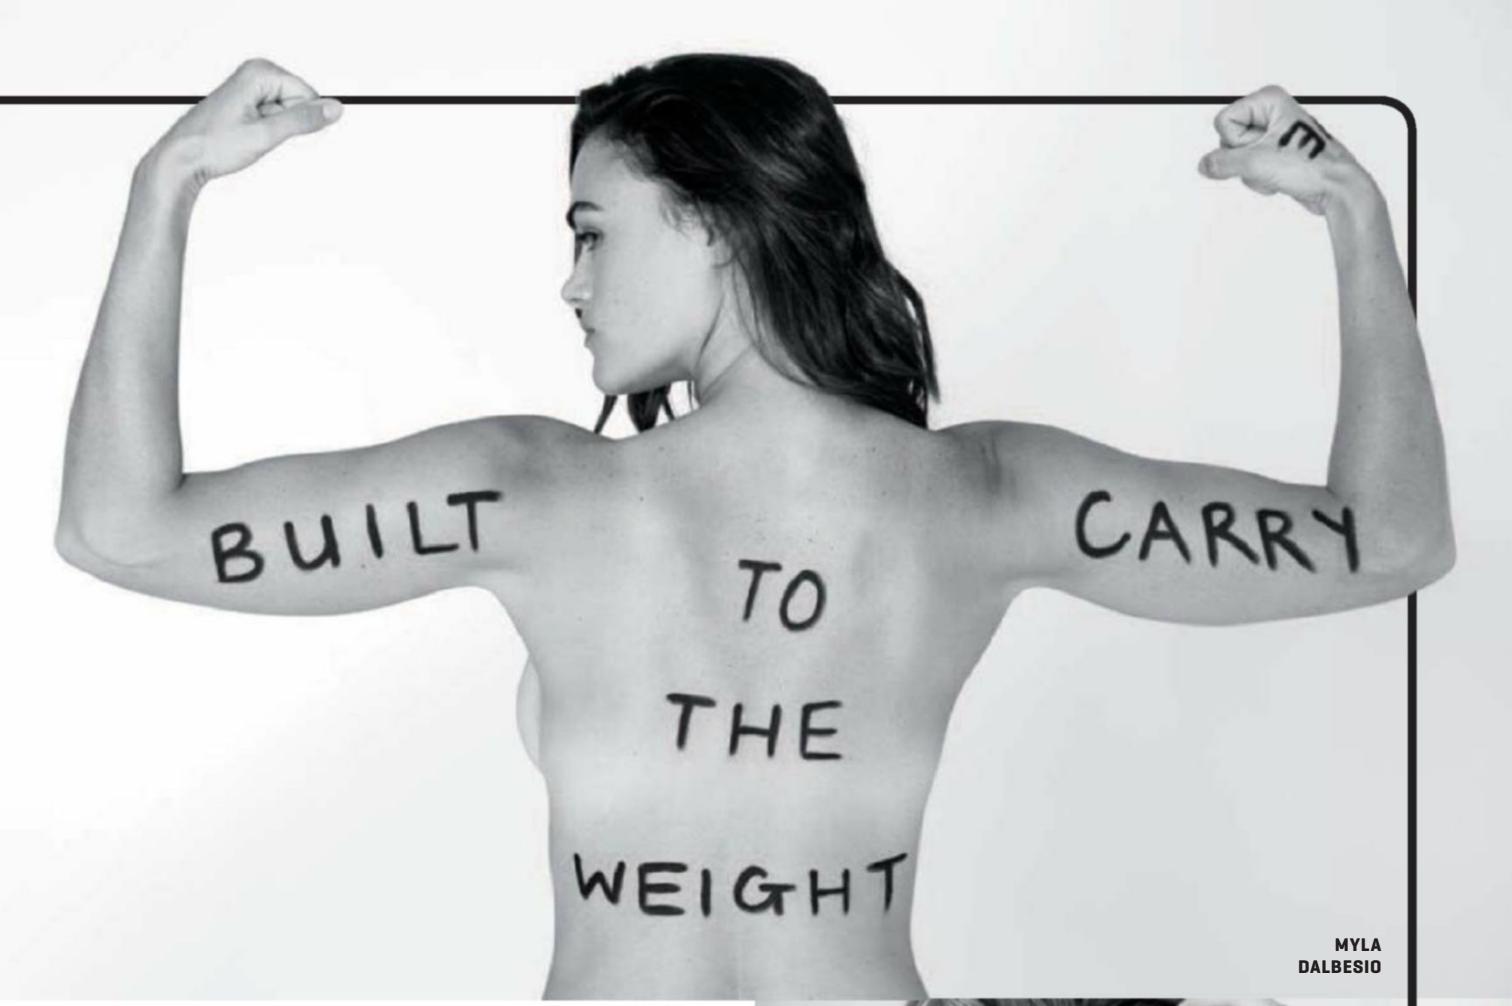

Because these are powerful human beings. Just as they see themselves. Just as they are.

1 Mahogany Bay Village caters to travelers seeking "a relaxed adventure." 2 The Great Blue Hole is located about 50 miles southeast of Ambergris Caye. 3 Rum + Bean serves up something for everyone. 4 The Verandah turns out stunning dishes. 5 Porch space is not a problem at the Great House: It wraps around both levels.

TRAVEL

BELIZE

Ambergris Caye is indisputably one of the most gorgeous islands in the Caribbean. That wasn't always the case—because it was part of the mainland until 600 A.D., when some enterprising Mayans dug a channel to improve their trade routes. The 25-mile long strip of land off the coast of Belize now offers the epitome of island living.

ON THE TOWNLET

Ambergris Caye has one town: San Pedro, on its southern end. But it also has a village—specifically, Mahogany Bay Village. Opened two months ago, Mahogany Bay is a community replete with a "townlet" that features restaurants and shops such as Road to Cayo [roadtocayo.com], where artisans create heirloom furniture from hand-selected lumber. The Village also contains the luxurious Mahogany Bay Resort and Beach Club; the private beach can be reached by just a 10-minute boat trip. (800-416-7339, rooms from $369) mahoganybayvillage.com

BE THEIR GUEST

The centerpiece of Mahogany Bay Village is its 22,000-square foot Great House, which is home to the island's best fare. At The Verandah, a rotating Caribbean fusion menu features seafood pulled out of the marina that same day.

PERK UP AND WIND DOWN

Rum + Bean touts itself as the perfect way to bookend your day, with good reason. Looking for a boost in the morning? That would be the Bean part of the name. Looking for something to relax with in the evening? That's where the Rum comes in. From cappuccinos to Cuba libres, this trendy spot has you covered. rumandbean.com

HOLE-Y MOLY

Swim with friendly nurse sharks by the resort, or venture farther out into the sea to check out one of the most impressive natural features in the area: the Great Blue Hole, a 407-foot deep sinkhole deemed one of the top scuba diving sites in the world by none other than Jacques Cousteau.

1 The quaint Hermitage is family run. 2 The hotel boasts the world's best rum punch, a concoction that is best enjoyed poolside. 3 You can always find a monkey on Nevis—they outnumber people. 4 The pig roast at The Hermitage is great fun for everyone (except the pig). 5 The most potent drink on the island, the Killer Bee, is served up at Sunshine's.

TRAVEL

NEVIS

Covering just 36 square miles, Nevis, a volcanic island in the West Indies, is tiny—but it holds a big place in history. Discovered by Columbus, it's the birthplace of Alexander Hamilton. You'll be so happy here you'll want to break into song. Raise a glass!

REAL DEAL

Authenticity is key at The Hermitage. The furniture is antique and the buildings are historic, none more so than the centerpiece of the old sugar plantation, the Great House. Dating back to the 17th century, it's the oldest wooden house in the Caribbean. The guest rooms themselves are set in colorful gingerbread cottages, which are dotted among the expansive gardens filled with palm and fruit trees. Be sure to visit the Art House, a shop that sells work from local artisans. (869-469-3477, rooms from $150).

OINK!

If you stay at The Hermitage, you don't have to go far for great food. Meals are served on the verandah of the Great House. The highlight is the weekly pig roast; every Wednesday a local porker is spit roasted for seven hours under a mango tree. (Which, if you have to be spit roasted, is a pretty great locale.)

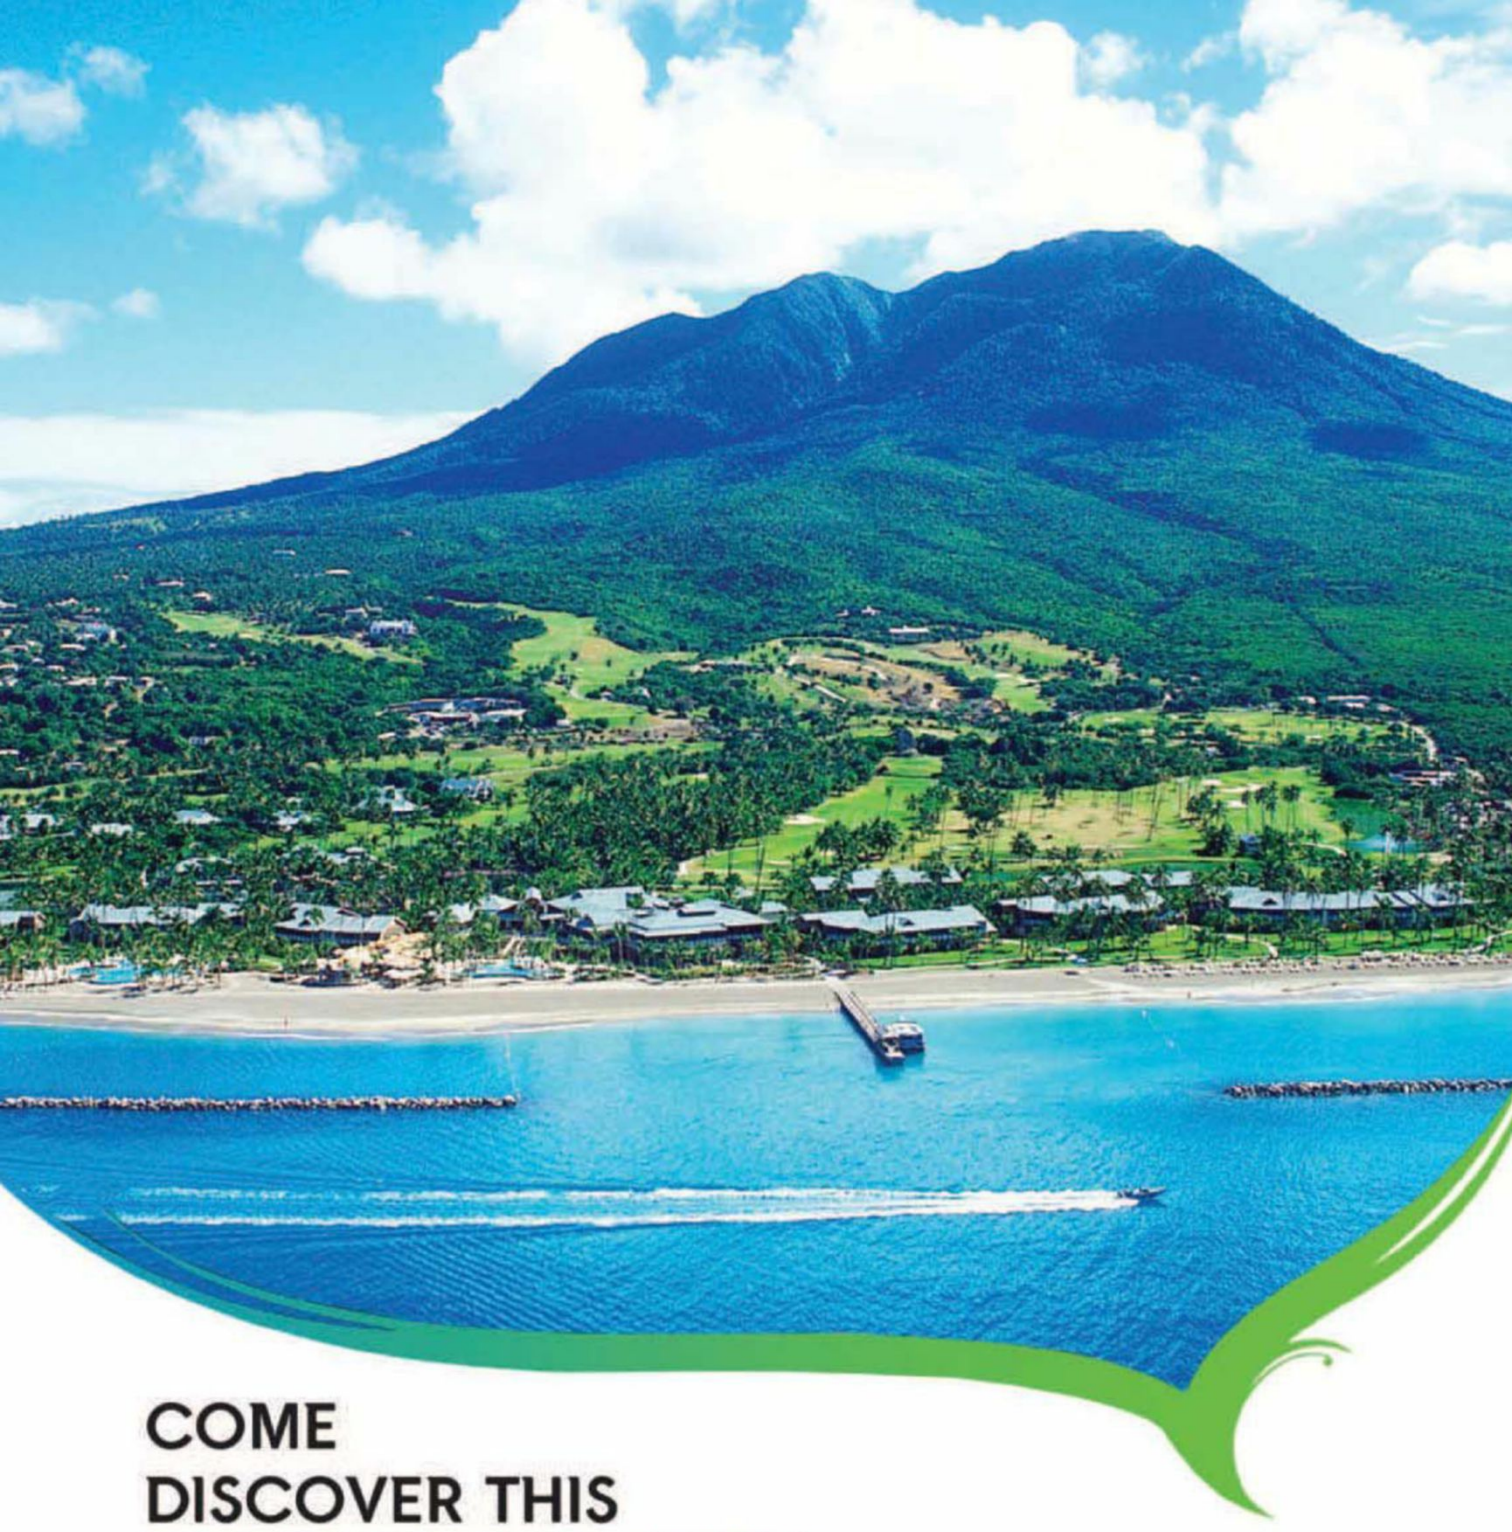

HOMES AWAY FROM HOME

The island has just 406 hotel rooms but plenty of accommodations. Suzanne Gordon went to Nevis in 1997 to write a book; three years later she started Sugar Mill Real Estate. It features some of the island's most breathtaking rental properties. And if you love it here (spoiler alert: you will!), Sugar Mill also lists homes, land and villas. (869-663-8910, rentals from $200).

GETTING BUZZED

Every island has the perfect beach bar where you can while away an afternoon with a cocktail (or two). Sunshine's is a beachfront hangout that serves up the Killer Bee. The recipe is a secret—bartenders will sometimes mix the drinks under the bar—but whatever it is, it packs a (delicious) kick.
